

Thought by Sarah

At the moment the Bluebell is giving us a glorious show in the woodlands around the benefice. It uplifts the spirit. The National Trust says that half the population of bluebells in the world are in the U.K. they are rare elsewhere, which is amazing.

Often we take for granted the things that are around us.

Today we see the sacrifice of those who have put their lives at risk to help others, whether they be nurses, doctors, the paramedics, those in administrative posts, the cleaners and many others in the food chain, the dustbin men, all who keep this country running.

SO let us each Thursday at 8pm continue to stand and clap to thank those in the NHS and others who are unknown. I have been told that it raises their spirits to know that they are appreciated.

Pass on the blessings that you have received; say thank you to those getting the food to our tables, those on the streets; everyone likes to be thanked.

Thank you God that you give us many blessings; help us to pass them on to others and appreciate all that you do for us. Lord we lift before you all who put their lives at risk to help others, help them to discern the best way forward and give them peace of mind and heart. Amen